

Highland Raptors 2012

Friday 27th January: A travel day to get yourself to our Highland base for the weekend. We'll arrange transfers from the local station (about 15 minutes or so away) or you can drive yourself. There'll be tea waiting for afternoon arrivals and a hearty dinner to look forward to once you're settled in and at which we'll finalise plans for the 2 full days of photography ahead.

Saturday 28th and Sunday 29th January: Each day will follow a broadly similar pattern of morning and afternoon sessions in different locations/habitats with different birds, settings, behaviour and action to be working with. Amongst the opportunities we would anticipate will be the drama of a Golden Eagle in snowy or moorland settings, the challenge of capturing an Eagle Owl in flight over heather, Peregrine in winter bilberry, Merlin overlooking stunning Highland scenery. At each session we'll create a number of different opportunities to ensure that over the course of the 2 days you'll build up a comprehensive portfolio of material that consists of diversity and depth as opposed to one location per species. We'll be on hand throughout to make sure you get the level of coaching and input into your photography that you want. We'll be working with a very experienced falconer whose birds are kept in the most immaculate condition so all we'll need is the weather to work with us too!

Monday 30th January: After a hearty Scottish breakfast (that you'll have almost become used to by now) it'll be time to head home unless you're staying on for the Highland Winter break that follows later that day. There will be transfers to the local station as required.

NOTE: Any guest booking on this weekend break and the immediately following Highland Winter trip at the same location will have the cost of the combined trips reduced by £100
